

British Trade Unionists oppose Trump's aggression against Cuba

We, the undersigned British trade union General Secretaries, stand in solidarity with the Cuban people and the Cuban trade union movement at a moment of dangerous escalation by the United States government.

We condemn the latest provocative actions against Cuba, including the indictment of former Cuban President Raúl Castro. These measures are part of a wider campaign of economic warfare, political aggression and destabilisation directed against the Cuban people.

At a time when Cuba is already facing severe shortages of food, fuel and medicines as a result of the US blockade and escalating sanctions, these actions risk further inflaming tensions and creating a pretext for intervention against a sovereign nation.

As trade unionists, we reject attempts to demonise Cuba and undermine its sovereignty. We believe disputes between nations must be resolved through dialogue and respect for international law – not coercion, sanctions or threats.

We therefore call on the British government to oppose all attempts at foreign intervention against Cuba and demand an end to the US blockade and economic sanctions

Paul Nowak, General Secretary TUC
Andrea Egan, UNISON
Sharon Graham, Unite the Union
Daniel Kebede, NEU
Fran Heathcote, PCS
Dave Ward, CWU
Eddie Dempsey, RMT
Steve Wright, FBU
Dave Calfe, ASLEF
Gawain Little, GFTU
Steve Gillan, POA
Sarah Woolley, BFAWU
Maryam Eslamdoust, TSSA
Jo Grady, UCU
Liz Martin, PCU
Brian McDaid, Aegis
John McGowan, General Secretary SWU